I HAVE been requested to write a few introductory lines to this Catalogue, and feel it is one of the greatest compliments that could have been paid to me. Nothing I can say would enhance the value of such a collection, and I cannot therefore look on the request in any other light than that of a delicate mode of conferring upon me the privilege of publicly expressing the respect and regard which I have for nearly thirty years entertained for the kind friend, whose sudden and unexpected loss I so deeply deplore.

Distinguished amongst English Antiquaries by the perfection of his taste, as well as the extent of his knowledge, the difficulty of imposing upon him was increased by the necessity of the fabrication being fine enough in form, colour, or workmanship to rival the masterpiece it simulated: to be, in fact, itself a gem of art, which it would not pay to produce as a relic of antiquity. Mr. BERNAL could be tempted by nothing that was inferior. Even his Pictures, though avowedly not selected for their value as paintings, but for their illustration of costume, have probably, taken as a whole, more merit in them than any similar collection in Europe. I am not presuming to offer this as my own opinion; I but echo that which I have so often heard from the lips of men considered the highest authorities in such matters, both amateurs and dealers.

With the treasures thus garnered up, it would be an honor to any antiquary to have his name in any way associated; and I can only repeat that mine has no claim to such a distinction, unless it be that I yield to none in regret for the departed, and in sympathy for his bereaved family.

- 1362 A similar brooch, larger, with its tongue, rudely ornamented with chased bands
- 1363 A circular silver plate, with the alphabet engraved round it, and an inner moveable rotatory plate, which brings round a letter in an opening: supposed to have been contrived for the conveyance of secret messages—in a silver case, covered with black fish skin, with silver studs—temp. Charles I.
- 1364 A small silver circular perpetual English calendar, with rotatory movement, the days of the week, &c., engraved as first day, second, &c., evidently made for a Puritan at the time of the Civil Wars, inscribed—"Ye shall not think of the name of other gods, neither shall they be heard out of your mouths." Exod. xxiii., 13, &c.
- 1365 A round silver medal, which opens and contains a male and female portrait painted in colours: on one side engraved the figure of a saint (bishop) and coat of arms below, and inscription "Sanct. Rudbertus Eps. Salisb. 1625;" on the other the holy father, &c., with a cardinal's hat and lion rampant below, inscribed "Paris D. G. Archieps. Sali. Se. A. P. L." and an inner inscription "Sub tuum præsidium confug."

- 1366 A round silver medal, which unscrews, and contains twelve miniatures on talc and two on paper, with the life of a saint; each one has a blank for the face of the saint to fit over the painting at the bottom: the medal has on one side the effigy of Frederick III., Emperor of Germany, who reigned from 1637 to 1658
- 1367 A massive antique silver ring, with monograms engraved on the shanks
- 1368 A thick silver ring, with a coat of arms (of a vessel in full sail) on the tablet, and on the shanks a faint engraving of the Virgin and Child and a bishop
- 1369 A rude ring, of silver, chased with a representation of a hand and ornaments: it appears to have been formerly gilt
- 1370 A ring guard for the finger against the friction of the bowstring, of green jade, with ornamental inlaying of gold and rubies; and another guard, similar, of ivory
- 1371 An Italian ornament, intended to be suspended, of chased gold or silver gilt; an oblong tablet, with scrolls and masks and pearls attached, with the letters D. A. in relief, and two shields of arms enamelled—of the Cellini period
- 1372 A silver fillagree crucifix, with rays behind, the figure partly draped and gilt, with the Virgin kneeling, and a scroll engraved beneath. Presumed to be of Spanish work
- 1373 A papal ring, set with a large crystal, with the tiara and keys, with arms on two sides, and the emblems of the evangelists on the other in relief—inscribed "Sixtus Quartus"
- 1374 A Doge's ring, metal gilt, set with a green coloured stone, with a winged lion and two shields of arms—inscribed R·X·R
A·G·O·N·A
- 1375 A girdle, of metal gilt, enamelled with blue and white on upright flat plates—of elegant arabesque design, of the fifteenth century

* No. 1295, an interesting relique of one of the Carlovingian race of kings in the ninth or tenth century, attracted no notice in "the old curiosity shop," in the Place Musée, Brussels, till the more practised eye of Pratt, in New Bond Street, discovered its latent antique charms, and obtained it of Barthelemy, the dealer, for the price asked—ten francs! Mr. Bernal became the purchaser at ten pounds, but M. Didron subsequently sought its possession, by proffering the latter one hundred pounds.

* No. 1663 was purchased by Messrs. Annot and Gale, for Martin T. Smith, M.P., who finding he had unintentionally obtained it, in competition with the School of Design, generously presented it to Marlborough House, where it remains an honourable memento of his liberality and patriotism.

* No. 1848, sold at the Stowe sale, August 17th, 1848, no. 304, for four pounds. Mr. Bernal purchased it for five pounds.

In the Stowe Catalogue, the subject of this plate is described as "an interior, with an artist painting the Majolica ware." Here, the assuming the seated figures to be those of Raffaele and the Fornarina created without due reflection an extraordinary competition to possess a pictorial production that after all establishes nothing in reference to that pre-eminently distinguished Artist. La Fornarina as his supposed mistress is a doubtful personage; she is first mentioned by that name by Simone Fornari, in 1549, and his statements were heedlessly adopted by Vasari. None of the earlier biographers of Raffaele notice any such connexion; and the stories of the painter's raptures on his first sight of the asserted beautiful Transteverina are still more modern inventions, while Vasari's idle relation respecting Raffaele's inordinate attachment to the Fornarina, the alleged cause of his death, is an absurd calumny.

* In the Catalogue, compiled it is presumed, from Mr. Bernal's very frequently defective notes, the subject of no. 1926, painted by Georgio Andreoli at Gubbio in 1525, is erroneously said to be "the Judgment of Paris;" on the contrary, it represents "the Stream of Life," after an early and very rare print by Robetta.

† The tazza-shaped basin, no. 1932, was retained for the British Museum at eighty pounds; and the antique steel stand passed to Marlborough House at sixteen pounds.

No. 2076, a true specimen of the real and extremely rare Palissy ware, was originally purchased in a broken state at Paris, for twelve francs! It was admirably restored here, but Mr. Bernal and other collectors in their discrimination appear to have been equally at fault; it was long on hand for sale at four pounds, and Mr. Bernal only purchased it at that price, after three months consideration. These matters are now better understood, and the day has passed when rarities of surpassing interest might be purchased for trifling sums.

No. 3212. Horace Walpole, when at Venice in 1741, obtained two dozen of these plates, which, in the Description of the Villa at Strawberry Hill, printed in 1774, are enumerated among the contents of the China-room, p. 9, as "Two dozen plates of Venetian glass; each plate has a different view of Venice, drawn in red." On the dispersion of that Collection in 1842, they were sold in four lots of six each, the average produce of each lot being 3*l.* 10*s.* A comparison of the prices in the Strawberry Hill sale, with the present, proffers material for serious reflection.
